

COMM325: Human Communication and Technology

This course explores the role of electronic and digital technologies in facilitating human communication. It addresses questions concerning how technology affects the way we communicate and how changes in communication and technology may alter our relationships with one another and the technology itself. Topics will include computer-mediated communication, text messaging, social networking, and virtual communities.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Department: Communication and Media Studies

Area of Inquiry: Soc & Behav Sciences