

COMM418: Intercultural Communication

Examination of the influence of culture as a primary variable on interpersonally-oriented communication outcomes in contexts ranging from macro- and microcultures of social and ethnic identification to countercultures, social classes, rural-urban settings, geographic regions, and gender differences in organizations and families.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Department: Communication and Media Studies

Area of Inquiry: Soc & Behav Sciences