

COMM425: Seminar in Popular Culture

Popular culture has been described as a sphere in which audiences struggle over meaning and understanding of reality. This course explores the study of that struggle, examining the ways in which the media contribute to the construction of popular culture and help to define the ways in which we view the world.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Prerequisites:

COMM215

Department: Communication and Media Studies