

HIS325: United States Diplomatic History

The course will survey the historical development of United States diplomatic policies and positions which have influenced American attitudes toward other peoples or significantly affected domestic development. American economic, religious, racial, and cultural values will be integrated into the study.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Department: History

Semester Offered:

Spring (even)