

PSY315: Health Psychology

The study of the biological, psychological, and social dimensions involved in health and illness, with emphasis on immune functions, stress, drugs, alcohol, cardiovascular disease, diet, and sexually- transmitted disease.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Prerequisites:

PSY111.

Department: Psychology

Semester Offered:

Spring