

PSY337: Psychology of Women

This course will provide an over-view of classical and contemporary psychological research pertaining to women. It will explore biological and cultural similarities and differences within topics such as behavior, language, emotion, motivation, mental health, and development. The course will include a special focus on women of different ethnic backgrounds.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Department: Psychology

Semester Offered:

Spring (odd)