

ART327: Furniture Design and Fabrication

This course investigates the processes found in traditional and contemporary practices of furniture making, specifically with wood as a material. The course will cover the use power tools and hand tools as well as lumber structure, wood species, wood movement, and joinery techniques. Students will engage in a number of technical exercises leading up to the creation of finished works.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Department: Art