

ENG356: Linguistics

English language and grammar compared to other languages and their dialects based on structural and transformational principles to facilitate understanding of language arts. May include language acquisition, psycholinguistics (and its parallels to computational linguistics), sociolinguistics, and neurolinguistics.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Prerequisites:

ENG112 or 200.

Department: English

Semester Offered:

Spring (odd)