

PSY328: Learning

This course is an in-depth survey of the major classic and contemporary psychological theories and research in learning. Emphasis will be given to classical and operant conditioning principles, which are the behavioral research standard in the field. Learning will be examined from biological, psychological, and sociocultural perspectives.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Prerequisites:

PSY111.

Department: Psychology

Semester Offered:

Spring