

REL253: Religions of the Modern World

An introduction to the history, beliefs, practices, and overarching worldviews of the major religions of the modern world. Emphasis is placed upon understanding the perspective of the adherents of each tradition, rather than using a comparative method to make evaluative judgments about the merits of the various traditions.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Department: Religion

Semester Offered:

Spring (even)

Area of Inquiry: Religion