

SOC355: Environment and Sustainability

This course is designed to help the student think about the environment, sustainability, and the role of society and culture in determining how we will survive and prosper on this planet. Please note that this course employs service learning and therefore involves significant work outside of the classroom.

Credit Hour(s): 3

Department: Sociology

Semester Offered:

Spring (even)