

Veterinary Medicine

Students interested in veterinary medicine should follow the recommendations for pre-medical and pre-dental students and consult the catalogs of veterinary colleges for specific course recommendations and other application requirements.

Georgetown College offers all the prerequisites and recommended courses for veterinary programs. Students also need to work in the veterinary field, preferably shadowing both large and small animal veterinarians. Kentucky has a contract with Auburn's Veterinary School where they accept at least 40% of their entering class from Kentucky. For more information about pre-veterinary medicine, please contact Dr. Tracy Livingston.
